

Venezuela

(1859-)

Republic on the northern coast of South America. Under Spanish rule after 1546, Venezuela was one of the first Latin American colonies to declare its independence, and from 1821 to 1830 it formed part of Bolivar's Great Colombia, which also included Colombia and Ecuador. In 1945, democratic government was established. Several military coups followed, but since 1959 Venezuela's governments have been progressive and democratically elected.
